bags if they feel parched, energetic and spirited. Only three to five bags are made with the same pattern, so the customer is basically buying a limited edition. This feature, along with the crochet bottom, sets Earthsplint yoga bags apart from other brands.

Conveniently, her mom, Rhonda Uretsky, owns BSM Marketing, Matawan, and was able to help Carly get the word out to every yoga studio in the country.

"We put letters together for companies in the tri-state area and sent them out to different studios throughout the country every four weeks," says Uretsky, who has been practicing yoga for 30 years and is a certified yoga instructor.

Daily classes of school and Carly can beg you down, but yoga is a great way to reconnect with yourself and has become very popular in the past 20 to 40 years, Uretsky says.

Carly has been going to yoga class with her mother since she was 9.

"I helped her with the Carly began with Sivananda yoga, which opens up the chakras, she says. Along with her mom, she now does Bikram yoga, which is conducted in a 105-degree room and consists of 26 postures. The heat opens up muscles and basically burns you into putty, causing you to sweat like crazy, Carly says.

"It's very challenging — it is to stay in a meditative place," she says.

The success of Earthsplint Yoga Bags also is partially due to the Web site www.earthsplintyogabags.com. Teen People magazine saw the Web site and decided to include the bags of the accessories section of the April 2005 issue.

Carly was invited to attend the Designers Ball in New York on June 11. She took the opportunity to attend this charity fashion event, which showcased her product to an upscale New York crowd.

Earthsplint donates 10 percent of all profits to charities such as Operation Santa in New York and Children's Inc. Earthsplint will donate 10 percent of the profits of each bag to any charity at the customer's request as long as the address of the charity is pro-

School of Monmouth County, a K-8 elementary school in Holmdel, where she learned to think differently at a young age. Based on the English open school system, the New School has no grades or testing, and students learn at their own pace. The environment

"We started from childhood with Carly to inspire her to find a talent and build from there — parents should strive children into the world and get out of the way," Uretsky says.

Carly is a junior at the Freehold Performing Arts Center High School and is not sure what she wants to do with her life at this moment. With interests in writing, yoga and drama, Rebrew Jacques and Carly have plans to attend a music college.

Carly has invested her time and energy into her business, but she is also a fun and friendly 16-year-old who loves to work out and relax with friends.

"I like to go to the movies, hang out with my friends and go to the beach," she says.

Carly Uretsky-Miller crochets the bottom of each bag. This stitching allows air to get to the chew-sweaty items that the bags hold. (Photo by CLAIRE LYNDE/Special to the Press)
